ABSTRACT

The California Indian Library Collections (CILC) was funded with the aim of returning unique cultural materials in three media types--sound recordings, photographs, and text--to California's Native Americans and making the collections available to all citizens through their local libraries. This finding guide includes instructions on how to order copies of written materials, followed by a guide to the bibliographic format used in the finding guide. The bibliographies in this section are divided into two types: tribal bibliographies and a general bibliography. The tribal bibliographies represent the textual materials pertaining to each of the specific tribes represented in the holdings of the Sonoma County collection of the CILC. The general bibliography is the composite guide to all written materials. There are five types of citations represented in these bibliographies: books; reprints of books; chapters or parts of books; journal articles; and unpublished materials. Three pieces of information are included in each citation: the California State Library call number; the libraries where the work is held; and the tribes treated in the work. (JLB)

Guide to Bibliographic Format

The bibliographies found in this section are divided into two types: (1) tribal bibliographies, and (2) a general bibliography. The tribal bibliographies represent the textual materials pertaining to each of the specific tribes represented in the holdings of the Sonoma County collection of the California Indian Library Collections (CILC). The General Bibliography is the composite bibliography of all Sonoma County tribal bibliographie. All bibliographies are arranged alphabetically by the California State Library call number (for example, CILC C87 N6 1980). In some citations the call numbers from libraries at U.C. Berkeley may also be listed. The following book citation is reprinted as it appears in the bibliography. (Note: the citation is reproduced here in bold type face).

Murray, Keith A. The Modocs and Their War. Norman, Okla.: University of Oklahoma Press, 1959.
CILC M89 M6 1959.
Collection Holdings: CSL/ CILC/ Modoc/ Siskiyou/ Tribes: Klamath/ Modoc.

This example (a book citation) represents one of five types of citations most often found in the finding guide. Each of these five citation types is analyzed in the following pages. Although these examples cover the most frequently used types of materials, entries in the bibliographies may vary depending upon the cited work. However, three specific pieces of information given in each citation – the California State Library call number (which begins with CILC), the libraries where the work is held, and the tribes treated in the work – will appear in all citations.
